& keep officers on leave, and force them to waste their leave when they do not need them. When they actually need to leave they may not leave it, or they may be forced to go on leave on half a one quarter of their salary.

10) In trying to be kind to some officers in not recording them (though my personal view is that this kindness is misplaced), we are causing harm to others. As between two officers, one having a superior permanent lien, and the other only an acting or unpermanent lien, the latter has always to take his chances & yield place to the former.

11) I would strongly urge taking back the permanent men on duty and recording the last acting men. The present practice is not doing any good to the services or their morale, and postings & transfers have become an unnecessary & highly complex & unedifying problem.
